

Brown animals

Elk

Brown bear

Brown eagle

European mouflon

Eastern cottontail rabbit

Tamias chipmunk

Brown animals

Elk

Fun Fact: Elk are excellent swimmers! They can effortlessly cross rivers and lakes, making them one of the few hoofed animals with strong swimming abilities.

Bonus: A baby elk is called a calf, and they can stand and walk within a few hours after being born!

Brown bear

Fun Fact: Brown bears are skilled climbers, and they can ascend trees to escape danger or to find food. Despite their large size, they are surprisingly agile!

Bonus: Brown bear cubs often engage in playful activities, like wrestling and climbing trees, to develop essential skills for survival.

Brown eagle

Fun Fact: Eagles have incredible eyesight! They can spot a rabbit from more than a mile away. Their keen vision helps them locate prey from high in the sky.

Bonus: Eagles mate for life, and they often perform impressive aerial displays together, including cartwheeling through the air.

European mouflon

Fun Fact: Mouflons are fantastic climbers and can scale steep mountain slopes with ease. Their hooves have a concave underside that acts like suction cups on rocks.

Bonus: Male mouflons, known as rams, have impressive curved horns that can grow up to 30 inches long!

Eastern cottontail rabbit

Fun Fact: Cottontail rabbits are expert jumpers, and they use their strong hind legs to leap great distances to escape predators.

Bonus: They got their name from the fluffy, white "cotton ball" tail that resembles a small piece of cotton.

Tamias/Chipmunk

Fun Fact: Chipmunks are hoarders! They collect and store food in their cheek pouches to carry back to their burrows for later consumption.

Bonus: Chipmunks are known for their distinctive "chip-chip-chip" sounds, which they use to communicate with each other.